

Copyright Statement and Disclaimer

© Environment Agency 2008

As the user of this product you (“you”) by using this product the agree that :-

1. All intellectual property rights in the product are the property of the Environment Agency (“we”, “us”) and, subject to the following, all rights are reserved.
2. This product has not been prepared to meet you or anyone else’s individual requirements and so it is your responsibility to ensure that it meets your needs. We have tried to ensure that all data and information we provide through this product is correct at the time of publication. We apologise for any errors. We therefore do not guarantee the accuracy of the contents nor accept any liability in relation to the use therefore, and we gives no promises or warranties whatever about the quality, fitness for purpose, performance or freedom from errors in the product, which is supplied ‘as is’. Any user of the product using data or information contained in it does so entirely at their own risk.
3. We cannot promise to supply any support, assistance or ‘bug fixes’ for user of the product.
4. We cannot promise whether the product will be compatible with your hardware or software and accept no responsibility for any effects of using the product as to any conflict or damage to any or your hardware or software. You are entirely responsible for the consequences of any use of the product. We cannot guarantee that the product is free of viruses, trojan horses, software locks, spyware or any other similar defects and you should do the appropriate checks.
5. You may use and copy insubstantial extracts from this product for the purposes in this paragraph. The repeated and systematic copying of insubstantial parts of this product may amount to the downloading of a substantial part of those contents and breach of our intellectual property rights. You may use information from the product for your own private use or for use with your business without restriction and you may give a copy to others provided that it is not part of or in connection with a chargeable or revenue raising service, you copy the product exactly as it is and attach a copy of this notice. This does not include republishing on the Internet. Recipients should also comply with the notice. Whenever possible any authorised copying shall acknowledge the Environment Agency’s ownership.
6. If you are a professional adviser you may give a single un-amended and un-adapted copy to your client (but this does not mean that you cannot run the software using your own input data to produce your own outputs) provided that you also attach a copy of these notes and conditions. Recipients should also be advised that they must comply with them. You may also give your clients details of outputs from the product and advise your clients in connection therewith.
7. You must contact us if you wish to use the product in any way other than set out above. Examples of when you need to contact us include republishing on the Internet, passing on for commercial gain(for example by way of rental, licence, sale or providing service for consideration) or using the product (including creation and passing on data derived from our data) in connection with or to promote a commercial service beyond that allowed in paragraph 6.
8. For further information on the context within which this product was produced, see the accompanying guidance documents entitled ‘An ecological risk assessment framework for contaminants in soil’ and ‘Guidance on the use of soil screening values in ecological risk assessment’. Enquiries about these products should be made to the customer enquiries line on 08708 506506 or by email to ‘enquiries@environemant-agency.gov.uk’.